DETAILED ACTION

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 7-12 and 14 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground of rejection.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

Claims 7-12 and 14 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Fite et al. U.S. 2003/0123767 A1 in view of Fujii JP Patent No. 04008143 A.

Fite discloses a plurality of redundant bearings, a plurality of coaxial support elements (1210, 1220, 1230), with at least one of said support elements rotatable about an axis of rotation, and an armature rotatably guided by said plurality of support elements to rotate about said axis of rotation; said bearings providing redundancy (1200) continue armature rotation in the event one bearing fails. A shaft guided by, and rotatable with respect to, each of said plurality of coaxial support elements about said axis, said shaft guiding said armature. A plurality of coaxial support elements further comprises inner and outer sleeves surrounding said shaft. A rotor element couple to said armature (see fig. 1). A plurality of redundant stators attached to one of said coaxial support elements, each of said stators (130 and 135) having current terminals to receive a current producing an electric field to induce said armature to rotate in response to a received current, at least one of said redundant stators being operable to induce said armature to rotate even if one stator fails (see fig 1). A blade (110) is coupled to and rotatable with the armature. Fite disclose the claimed invention except for said housing containing an armature and the bearing. However Fujii discloses the use of a motor having a housing (1) containing an armature (4) and the bearing (16) in order to suppress the occurrence of turbulence.

Therefore, it would have been obvious to one having skill in the art at the time the invention was made to provide a housing containing a armature and the bearing as disclosed by Fujii since that would had been desirable in order to suppress the occurrence of turbulence.

Conclusion

Art Unit: 2834

Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
